Athletic Events and Dancing

Of the Day.

More than 3,000 prophets of Kalipolis Grotto and members of their families went to Chesapeake Beach yesterday and participated in festivities with 2,000 Masons from Baltimore. Washington lodges made their way by special trains to the grounds of festivities, while the Baltimore visitors went to the beach in boats. It was the annual outing of the order.

To Washington went the honors of the day when Capt. Henry J. Gompers' tug-of-war squad copped the honors in the title event with the Baltimore aggregation. A silver loving cup was the trophy in this contest. The cup will be awarded to the first team which wins the event twice in succession.

Athletic contests were on the board for the afternoon. Upon the arrival of the local grotto the two teams paraded to the Belvidere Hotel accompanied by the two bands. Dancing and games were on the program during the evening.

Have You Ever Thought Of a Life Saver's Duty?

This is the first of a series of pictures of those who protect hundreds of thousands of lives at the Tidal Basin each summer.

No. 1—EDWARD L. PUGH.

Of all the times Edward L. Pugh has pulled adventurous bathers from the water when their lives were in danger, in only one instance has he been thanked.

Life guards are always the target for flirtatious feminine eyes at the beaches, but when one of the tanned, athletic guardians of the foolish saves a possessor of a pair of the above-mentioned eyes he not only gets no thanks but often gets a rebuke.

Pugh, one of the guards at the Tidal Basin, is the captain of the Technical High School football and track teams for the coming year. He is 19 years old, lives in North Chevy Chase, Md., and learned to swim in Rock Creek. Last summer he worked part of the season at the Basin and has been on duty steadily since the beach opened this year.

Last summer when he helped two little girls back to safety they thanked him simply but earnestly for what he had done. That was the only time anyone ever thanked him. On Tuesday he pulled in a boy whose chief characteristic was plumpness; not even a few mumbled words showed gratitude.

Pugh's most laughable experience occurred a few weeks ago when two frightened women threw their arms about his neck and dragged him under. Now, that may not sound laughable, but it struck him that way and he gurgled a few moist laughs under the surface as he walked along the bottom bringing them to shallow water.

The second guard's picture will appear tomorrow.

Sinn Feiners Plan Trade Relations And Build Numerous Steamship Lines To Compete with World-Wide Commerce

By CARL W. ACKERMAN.
(Washington Herald-Public Ledger Service, Special Cable Dispatch.)

London, Aug. 11.—Excerpts from the most important parts of two confidential Sinn Fein reports on trade, commerce and local government, written by acting cabinet members of the Irish Republic, reveal how Sinn Fein controls county and rural district councils. They show how the Sinn Fein is building up foreign commerce and they will interest American business men because they reveal that the United States Shipping Board has been in touch with Sinn Fein representatives in America and that the Irish overseas shipping and trading company is an organization owned, controlled and directed by the Irish Republic.

When one travels in Ireland today one hears everywhere of efforts to build up commerce with Ireland. One of the reports published today tells the inside story by the Irish minister of trade and commerce himself. Nothing more authentic than this could possibly be prepared, because what I am quoting from is a photographic reproduction of the typewritten report of the minister submitted to the recent secret session of the Dail Eireann, the Irish parliament, in Dublin.

"Safeguard Republican Majority." An interesting point about the report of the minister of local government is his order to local councils to "safeguard the Republican majority" by compelling all members to submit their resignations on blanks prepared at the time of their election but undated, which can then be accepted at any time the Dail wishes to get rid of a man who is not Republican enough in his sympathies. By this method of control, a Republican majority can always be assured.

The report on the department of trade and commerce states: "Early in November a conference representing farmers and co-operative societies was held in Waterford. It was decided to establish in that city a big factory, drawing supplies from Counties Waterford, Kilkenny, Cork, Limerick, Queens, and Carlow. The idea which was originally entertained, and which I outlined to the Dail a year ago, was that we should endeavor to establish over the country a series of small factories like that in Waterford, each drawing its supplies from a single county area. On more mature consideration, however, this plan was adopted in favor of one aiming at having only two or three big factories in the whole of Ireland.

The Waterford project is now fairly under way. One hundred and thirty-six pounds has already been subscribed, and capital is steadily coming in. A first-class site with water frontage and a railway running through it has been secured. In less than a year from now the factory will be in full working order. Organization of this society is certainly one of the most important industrial developments that have taken place in Ireland for a long time. Not only will employment be given to upward of 1,000 people, but the basis will be provided for further development in the matter of tanning, margarine making, manufacture of glue, etc.

And there will be a beneficial reaction on agriculture, since farmers will be encouraged to fatten their beasts rather than sell them as steers."

"We have now consuls in New York, Paris, Bern, Genoa and Buenos Aires who have been active in putting before the merchants and manufacturers of the countries in which they are stationed the possibilities of Ireland as a market and source of supplies. In America, Mr. Fawcett has done excellent service in connection with the direct shipping. He has kept in close touch with the United States Shipping Board and has taken care that Ireland was not forgotten. To his efforts may be ascribed the fact that in fixing routes for two new lines which will commence operation next year, namely, New York-Bremen and Boston-Bremen, it has been decided that these ships, of which thirteen have been chartered for the service, will in all cases call at Queenstown on the eastward journey.

Shipping Company Organized. "Towards the end of February the Irish Overseas Shipping Company was established for the purpose of doing what which could not be openly done by this department in existing circumstances, and also for the purpose of helping to collect cargo for American ships which were then leaving Dublin in ballast. This company has been able to respond freely with our consuls, whose reports pass as letters to a business firm seeking information about trade conditions abroad. It has also made all necessary inquiries from the British board of trade for the department and from European consuls who would have been reluctant to hold communication direct with a department of the Dail."

Baltimore Police Will Refuse Use of Vehicles in U. S. Dry Raids.

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 11.—The government prohibition force, with its morale seriously undermined by the arrest today of John W. Whitehead, one of its most active agents, on the charge of conspiring in the famous Vincent case, and with the Volstead enforcement weakened by the attorney general's opinion that the police need not enforce the Volstead act, received another blow today when Police Commissioner Galtier declared that the police department does not intend to make a further practice of using its patrol wagons as trucks for the purpose of hauling liquor, stills or other paraphernalia seized by the United States men on their raids.

It is not the police department's intention to do the internal revenue department's hauling at the city's expense and in danger of depriving the public of the urgent need of the patrol wagons or trucks at fires and uprisings, was made in a statement today by Commissioner Galtier.

G. O. P. BUTTONS TO BE ISSUED

D. C. Harding and Coolidge
Club to Hold First Meeting
Tonight.

Wardman Park Inn will house the first public meeting of the Harding and Coolidge Club of the District of Columbia tonight. Members will then receive the official button of the organization which has just been received.

Judge Jenkins, of the Philippine bench, and M. O. McLaughlin, Representative from Nebraska, will speak. T. Lincoln Townsend, president of the club, will be in charge of the meeting and Edgar C. Snyder, chairman of the speakers committee, will very probably introduce the judge and the Representative.

New Legion Formed. Announcement will be made at that time of the formation of the Republican Legion of the Harding and Coolidge Club under the chairmanship of William J. Dow and the vice chairmanship of Miss Mary O'Toole. The purpose of the legion is to accommodate those Republicans who desire to take an active part in the campaign but who do not wish to contribute the $10 necessary for membership in the Harding and Coolidge Club.

This suborganization has the approval of the Republican National Committee, and all money contributed by the legion will be regularly acknowledged and forwarded to the national committee treasurer. By the appointment of Miss O'Toole and Mrs. Virginia Speel upon the staff of the legion it is hoped that many women will be drawn into active political work.

That the button of the Harding and Coolidge Club will be a handsome affair is the statement of Townsend. He said the design was officially approved by Senator Harding and would be issued only to District of Columbia members. The Capitol dome is the center of the button in red. Surrounding that upon a white background are the words "Harding and Coolidge Club, District of Columbia" in blue. A border of gold surrounds the edge. The whole is the size of a 5-cent piece.

Approval Given to Campaign for Conventions During Summer.

Approval of the campaign for a big increase of convention during Washington's summer season was heard in all leading hotels of the Capital last evening.

The management of six or more large hotels, familiar with what the advertising club is undertaking in conjunction with the Chamber of Commerce and the Board of Trade, expressed their willingness to co-operate by augmenting their summer force to handle the national organizations that prefer to meet during the months of June, July and August.

Hotels were confident that the Advertising Club was not oversteering in reference to making Washington the leading convention city of the United States, and were gratified to hear that Secretary Francis X. Whalley, of the Advertising Club, has announced his intention to notify all large organizations meeting this summer that the National Capital will welcome them next summer.

TEST VOTE FAVORS
SUFFRAGE VICTORY

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 11.—Encouraged by a test vote in the lower house today which showed the suffragists in the majority, leaders of the ratification fight in the Tennessee legislature were busy tonight shaping plans for a joint hearing tomorrow night and a probable vote Friday morning.

Senators McCallister and Fawcett, of Tennessee, one of the Democratic leaders in the Lower House of Congress.

The test vote came on a resolution to refer ratification to the counties in mass meeting on August 24. Seth Walker, speaker of the house, left the chair to fight for the resolution and made a vigorous plea for its adoption. Suffrage leaders were disconcerted, but hope was revived with the failure of an amendment proposing that the referendum would not be binding unless a majority of the qualified voters participated. This was followed by the tabling of the original resolution by a vote of 50 to 37.

Anti-suffrage leaders insisted tonight that the test vote was a correct poll. They held that Republican strength, which was almost solidly for the resolution, and which proposed the amendment that would be binding unless a majority of the qualified voters participated. This was followed by the tabling of the original resolution by a vote of 50 to 37.

"Not one of the men who are irreconcilable to the league of nations had a son in the front line trenches, and I want any one of them to deny it," said Representative David H. Kinchloe, of the second district of Kentucky, in addressing the citizens of Seat Pleasant at their carnival last evening.

After driving home his lesson on the league, Kinchloe predicted that Harding would be forced to abandon his front porch campaign before the election is finished.

The carnival is being conducted for the benefit of the Seat Pleasant Fire and Welfare Relief Association.

Mrs. Myrtle Grayson-White and her three sons, Merlin, James and William Grayson, of 747 Sixth street southeast. Mrs. Grayson-White was shot by her husband, Policeman James W. White (insert), of the Harbor precinct, Tuesday night. White afterward fired two bullets into his own head and died at the Casualty Hospital. White's act, according to the Grayson boys, was the result of jealousy arising from his wife's insistence upon working nights at the Burlington Hotel to help swell the family income. Mrs. Grayson-White, at the Casualty Hospital with a bullet wound in her neck, is improving rapidly.

The Crank Taken to Fields
Of Egg Harbor, N. J. to Seek Coughlin Baby.

(Special to Washington Herald.) Philadelphia, Aug. 11.—Augusto Pasquale, "The Crank," was smuggled out of City Hall today, put into a swift automobile under defective guard and whirled into New Jersey.

The destination of the party in the police car was believed to be Egg Harbor, N. J., the town on the way to Atlantic City, near where Pasquale was caught a week ago last Monday after he had picked up a package which he believed contained $10,000 thrown from a window of a passing train by George H. Coughlin, father of Blakely, the kidnaped baby.

Busy at Egg Harbor. Egg Harbor is the scene today of renewed search by the State police and Philadelphia detectives, aided by detectives from Atlantic County, Maj. Adams, of the State police, and Capt. Souder, of the Philadelphia Detective Bureau, are in command, with County Detective Ben Nusbaum, of Atlantic City.

They are working on a clue which they hope will lead to the arrest of Pasquale's mysterious "pal," and possibly the finding of the child. All the country round about Egg Harbor and in the direction of New Gretna, where "The Crank" had a small farm, is being combed by a large force of State troopers and city detectives.

Crank Furnishes Directions. The search today really is a development of a search begun last night, and presumably on information supplied by Pasquale himself. It was rumored that Pasquale had said: "The kid's alive, and in New Jersey near Egg Harbor."

Besides this "tip," the detectives had another clue of a baby seen with a man and woman, who were foreigners, in the pine woods some miles from Egg Harbor.

Golden West Lures D. C. Young Men
Who Chase Fortune's Rainbow and Get 10 Cents and Dollar Appetite

Two months in the harvest fields of Kansas, Colorado and Nebraska yielded a profit of 10 cents to three Washington young men. That is, a meager 10 cents for the time and health they sacrificed, and with the prospect of a total loss.

Most of the young men that went from here are high school and college men, so it won't be hard to imagine a scene in any fraternity house this winter when someone pipes up, having long ago forgotten all about his homesickness in the wheat fields fifteen miles from a village out in Kansas:

"I was here last summer when I was out West I saw— and the battle will be fought all over again."

Fifty Men Go West. According to Robert L. Livingston, at the Employment Service Bureau of the Department of Labor, about half a hundred boys from this city journeyed to the harvest fields this year. Nearly all are back, not with their pockets stuffed with money, but with better health and a realization of what hard work means.

A government man in Kansas City surveys the labor situation in the West every season and then informs bureaus in Eastern cities of how many men are needed for the crop.

From the tale told by Wise, who with Daly and Donahue are juniors at Georgetown University, the wages were all they expected but after the work was done in one section it was a problem to find another district where help was wanted.

The boys traveled in box cars, slept wherever they could, for beds were not provided them by the men they worked for, saw fights between gangs of toughs who also made the harvest and many other things that they won't soon forget.

"No, I won't go out there next year, no, no, but I wouldn't take
